

Britain's winter experiences 2024

Britain is pulling out all the stops this festive season! From illuminated woodland trails and dazzling Christmas displays to torchlit parades, there are countless ways to embrace the season.

January 2025

Indulge in Christmas shopping at iconic stores like Selfridges and Fortnum and Mason, or browse for unique, handmade gifts at local craft fairs. For a more adventurous touch, try ice skating in the shadow of stately homes, or skiing down a Scottish mountain. And for something truly memorable, experience local traditions like Northumberland's flaming barrel parades or brave a chilly New Year's Day swim in Edinburgh. Experience Britain differently with these winter experiences in 2024.

Gather around the Christmas tree in Trafalgar Square

Standing tall in the heart of London, the Christmas tree in Trafalgar Square is a festive focal point conveniently close to the capital's major shopping hotspots. Since 1947, it has been gifted annually by the city of Oslo as a gesture of gratitude for British support during the Second World War. Don't miss the tree-lighting ceremony held on the first Thursday in December, a much-anticipated event that usually draws a large crowd. Not in London for the switch-on? Fear not, there is still plenty of festive cheer to be had, including traditional Christmas carols sung by choirs gathered around the tree.

Follow festive light trails

Experience Britain in a new light this winter with an illuminated trail. In Cardiff's Bute Park, visitors can go on an enchanting journey of light and sound in the shadow of the city's castle.
